Small may be beautiful

Indian reformers may take up this slogan for indirectly introducing market forces into the provision of both physical and social infrastructure, says DEEPAK BALAN.

"I am not simplifying, I am not ignoring, I am not being sentimental. In a rare move, and driven back to my bed by scorching summer weather, I began rereading my way into a life. The signs in the horizon were musty; the clouds on the horizon were damp. And so I began to write, a brush of words, a brush of ink. The day was hot, the ink was hot, and I found myself trying to avoid the sun. My skin was black, my hair was black, and my eyes were black.

Dublin, Ireland: Last week in Dublin, the Overlord of the Automobile, managing director of the Fiat Group, Mr. Sergio Marchionne, announced that he had invested in the Fiat Group's 50% stake in the Detroit-based Chrysler Group for $1.9 billion. The transaction will create a new Chrysler Group with sales of $170 billion and assets of $36 billion.

The main complication with the new entity is that it will have to compete head-on with the dominant players in the global automotive market, such as General Motors, Ford, and Toyota. However, Marchionne believes that the new Chrysler Group has the potential to become a major player in the North American market and a strong competitor in the European and Asian markets.

The deal is expected to close in the third quarter of 2011, subject to customary closing conditions.
